Designers Modernise 15th Century Modes

STAND-AWAY APPEARANCE

Sheath-like dresses, with flowing curves at the hem-line, almost demand the new "stand-out" at the top silhouette so reminiscent of Elizabethan and later modes in history. The stiffened shoulder pleces and high Medici collars which are seen on some of this season's ever ing models go back even farther into the archives of fashion their inspiration.

These dress notions were brought into play during the fifteenth century, when the height of eccentricity prevailed in mediæval headgear, the jewelled horned creations and be-muslined peaks. At this period, too, the frocks worn were all extremely flowing in line, with looped-up over draperies. It has been left to the moderns to intro- frocks of the glittery type with sucduce the tunic cut on sheath lines cess; and this smart accessory gives to well below the knee, with a turned up, stiffened flare breaking the into a full reach-the-ground skirt.

The modern "gorget" effects which are seen on some of the new evening dresses of to-day may range from a closely packed spray of chiffon or velvet roses tucked into a narrow shelf-like pleat across the front of an evening gown, to Gladstone collar of exaggerated proportions, made in stiffened silver that we must either grow our hair lame, or perhaps of sparkling paillettes, which stand out in two wide ! points on either side of the chin, above a square-cut decolletage. This glittering way of putting an unusual finish to a frock is indicative of the real gorget, "a piece of armour for the throat."

INTERESTING

By GEOFFREY SIMPSON

E. Hare, the youngest of U. Britain's international lawn tennis players, is burning the midnight oil-not, as you might think, in a round of gaiety, but in hard, laborious study.

Hare is 19, and he has ambitions to make a position for himself in the real estate and auctionsering business.

So he is swotting for his first examination in six months time, and has been so secretive about it that few of his tennis friends are aware of his new plan.

At the moment he is employed by a manufacturer of sports equipment, and what with this and his tennis the only time left for study; ing is at night.

L.T.A.'s Motion

TTARE'S decision to leave the sports goods business might connected by some with the Tennis Association's deintention of barring from amateur tournaments any persons so employed.

This motion comes before the annual meeting next month, but whether it will be carried is another matter.

However, Hare began poring over his books long before the L.T.A. made their announcement.

Perhaps he took inspiration from Pat Wheatley, who took a similar step some years ago and has done so well that he is now junior partner of a West End firm of estate agents.

London, October, 19. INQUIRIES which I have made show that all London's clubs are ARSENAL (8) v Aston Villa (2) sharing in the increased public support which, as I pointed support which, as I pointed out yesterday, is being enjoyed by the Arsenal. Indeed, I believe that the game is at the beginning of a boom which is spreading Liverpool (1) v Leicester (8) to all parts of the country, and which will create new records.

Last year, when there was an all-round increase in gates, the only area in which the support was poor was the hard-hit northeast coast. Here, sitting beside a telephone, is an expert who is ready, at any moment, to answer questions concerning travel by air. He is surrounded by time-tables, weather data, and reports and information of all kinds. It is his job to know everything, not only about flights along the European air-lines, but also about the route from England to the East, and that romantic air-line which takes passengers to the heart of Africa, and carries urgent loads in 9 days from London to Cape Town. QUEER AIR CARGOES CROCODILES, LADYBIRDS AND LOCUSTS Livestock Transport By Plane REMARKABLE GROWTH

Since the establishment by Imperial Airways, not long ago, of a department dealing with the transport of Livestock by air, the work of this department has been increasing constantly.

Many more pedigree dogs, among other animals, are now being consigned by the air routes from London to the continent. The other afternoon, for example, visit to the air-port showed that the officials had in their care, just at that particular moment, seven dogs which had arrived from varlious consignors for dispatch by air-liner to different points throughout Europe, each animal being housed in a comfortable travelling box.

Care Of Dogs

"A good many of the dogs entrusted to us," explained one of the experts, "are travelling over to be exhibited at shows on the continent. They not only complete their journeys so much sooner if they go by air, but they receive special care and attention, from members of our staff, while they are actually in transit.

"Apart from livestock consigned to and from the Continent," he added, "there are some strange FIAT RATE cargoes, nowadays, which reach us from destinations along the Empire routes.
